SCREEN SNAPSHOTS #2.

1. SOMETIMES WORK IS PLEASANT
For instance, Florence Vidor and her director-husband King, had the time of their lives when they went to the Far North to secure snow scenes for a production.

A free-for-all.
Comin' through the rye.
Snow to left of 'em - snow to right of 'em.
She just can't make her feet behave.
2. TO SEE HOW PICTURES ARE MADE.

Victor Herbert, famous American composer and conductor, pays a visit to a motion picture studio to see movies in the making.

Dorothy Phillips welcomes him.
"Won't you come in for a while?"
Wallace Beery is so used to playing villain roles he even does villainous things to the studio organ.
"Won't you play something for us?"
3. IN THE SPRING A YOUNG MAN'S FANCY --
Lightly turns -- where? Gosh, have forgotten the days when you killed your grandmother, and your sister fell downstairs, and -- well, just anything so's you could follow the crowd? says Wesley Barry.

"Wassa matter - can't you read?"
All Wes had was the war tax.
If freckles were money he'd have a box seat.
When there's a hole in your pocket --
-- hunt for a hole in the fence.
4. HOW A REAL COWBOY LIVES
If you've got the opinion that Harry Carey is just a screen cowboy and can't wait to get into a "hard-boiled" shirt when he's through working--come along with us for a little visit to his home.

His pride -- a 17,000 acre ranch, fifty miles from anywhere.
His cattle are known among the finest in the country.
5. DO YOU BELIEVE IN FAIRIES? (Home exterior border).
All the kiddies who act in Nazimova's pictures believe in fairies - and to them the star, who tells them the wonder-stories, is the Fairy Princess herself.

"-- and they lived happily ever after."
Charles Bryant, her husband, joins the fun.

6. LOS ANGELES TO NEW YORK A LONG RIDE. (Western Border)
Making a trans-continental trip gets pretty tiresome and Harold Lloyd sees to it that he gets his exercise every time the train stops.

Pogo jumping - a fad from Europe.
That's nothing - he's used to falls.
An on-looker thinks it's easy
"Good-Bye."

7. IT'S THE TRUTH
You've all wondered whether or not the stories you hear about screen stars' enormous salaries is true. Well, here's one who actually earns $2,000 every week!

Snooky almost makes us believe Darwin was right.
Hot dog!
-- and a nice old hen --
Ain't nature wonderful!
Dogging his footsteps.
Off to the butcher's.

When he was born his mother was sure he'd be President, but Ben Turpin couldn't see it that way.
And Charlie Murray agreed with him.

THE END.
